

Why Study Music at Ján Albrecht Music and Art Academy (JAMAA)?

Music is a creative art, but it is also a social phenomenon and, sometimes, a political tool – music does not exist in isolation from other arts, culture or society. The study of music therefore involves consideration of many historical and creative factors, as well as providing unique and highly valued skills such as analytical and lateral thinking, cooperation, negotiation and the development of creative imagination.

Jan Albrecht Music and Art Academy Banská Štiavnica (Slovakia) offers two attractive Bachelor and Master Study Programmes:

1. Music Performance and Theory (MPT) and 2. Music Composition and Theory (MCT)

The advantage is that a part of study can take part in the accredited space in Bratislava.

During the Bachelor Study Programme students complete theoretical and practical subjects, bachelor diploma work (theoretical and practical part) in three years (6 semesters) – full-time study or four years (8 semesters) – part-time study. It could be in shorter time if the student fulfils the prescribed conditions (he already studied at other universities and institution with ECTS which enables acknowledgement of the same or similar theoretical and artistic subject). The graduates gain the Bachelor Diploma and the title Bc., which enables the continuation at the magister (master) programmes at artistic universities worldwide.

During the Master Study Programme students complete theoretical and practical subjects, Master diploma work (theoretical and practical part) in two years (4 semesters) – full-time study or three years (6 semesters) – part-time study. It could be or in shorter time if the student fulfils the prescribed conditions (he already studied at other universities and institution with ECTS which enables acknowledgement of the same or similar theoretical and artistic subject). The graduates gain the Master Diploma and the title Mgr.Art., which enables the continuation at the artistic doctoral study programmes (ArtD., D.M.A., D.M. etc.) at artistic universities worldwide.

Why Study in Banská Štiavnica?

Banská Štiavnica in Slovakia, inscribed on the UNESCO World Heritage List, belongs to the very old and historical cities with great university tradition. The old medieval mining centre grew into a town with Renaissance palaces, gothic and baroque churches, elegant squares and castles. The urban centre with the surrounding mountainous landscape and many water reservoirs is very motivating space for artists and artistic education. The city with historical buildings offers many scenes for concert and artistic presentations.

Jan Albrecht Music and Art Academy Banská Štiavnica is only one private artistic university in Slovakia. The quality of education is insured by leading personalities: prof. PhDr. Zuzana Martináková, PhD. and prof. PhDr. Egon Krák, ArtD. who make guarantee and develop various kind of educational collaboration with many institutions abroad and other outstanding professors and lecturers from Slovakia and abroad. Very important is the collaboration with the Prayner and Vienna Conservatories situated in the very centre of the city Vienna (Austria) with a big and long history and musical tradition. Both conservatories enjoy a great interest of students from more than 50 countries from the whole world. This collaboration enables our students to visit both conservatories, to take part on mutual projects, musical and cultural life in Vienna.

Collaboration with the Bratislava International School of Liberal Arts (BISLA) in Bratislava enables to attend some subject also in Bratislava, to take part on mutual projects, musical and cultural life in Bratislava.

Our academy has the Erasmus Charter (ID code SK-Banská S01). We organize and implement mobility of students and teachers at the partner higher education institutions in European countries, which also contribute significantly to improving the quality of education.

We constantly explore innovative teaching and assessment methods, which combine practical and theoretical approaches to music and art. We also organize special musical and artistic workshops and seminars, scientific musicological conferences, festivals, concerts etc., where also our teachers and students take place.

Our spaces are equipped with good electronic and digital facilities and we maintain a substantial library of scores, CDs, records, DVDs and videos, with private listening facilities. These are in addition to the collections in the main Academic Library.

Banská Štiavnica has a lively music scene and possibilities to give concerts in the field of classical, historical or jazz music. Banská Štiavnica stages an exceptionally varied array of artistic events – both mainstream and alternative – including the annual International Music Festival SCHEMNITIENSIS organized by our Academy.

The part of education of bachelor and master study programmes can take place in the accredited space in Bratislava!

How will I learn?

Teaching is primarily by lectures, seminars, practical groups and tutorials, with emphasis on individual or small-group teaching based to allow you to engage as an active participant in the learning process. You are trained in Banská Štiavnica and Bratislava by professors, ass. professors and lecturers who are outstanding personalities from Slovakia, Hungary, Czech Republic and other countries.

If you choose to study the programme Music Performance and Theory (MPT) you also can take skills courses from other study programme Music Composition and Theory (MCT) where you can select the modern subjects as sound design, electro-acoustic and computer music, operation of music printing and sequencing software, etc. Vice versa, if you study the Music Composition and Theory, you can select the subjects from other programme as ensemble play, classical or historical instruments and singing, jazz instruments and singing, performance practice and seminar, etc.

You will be examined mainly via assessed portfolios, practical presentations (concerts, performances), seminar works and presentations. You will be prepared in bachelor diploma thesis – practical part (public concert in MPT or composition in MCT) and in bachelor diploma thesis – theoretical part (written diploma thesis thematically related to the practical specialisation).

Both study programmes can be combined with Supplementary Pedagogical Study (SPS) to the bachelor or master diploma (subjects: Pedagogy, Psychology and Didactics of special instrument, singing, conducting or composition). You gain the SPS Diploma, which authorize you to teach at music schools and conservatories.

What will I achieve after graduation Bc. Study Programme?

Graduating bachelor MCT programme you will familiarize with the main features of the current development worldwide and improve the theoretical and practical knowledge on the field of music theory, classical or jazz and popular composition, arrangement, sound design and electro-acoustic composition;

Graduating bachelor MPT programme you will familiarize with the main features of the current development worldwide and improve the theoretical and practical knowledge on the field of music Performance and Theory after your specialisation: classical/historical/jazz music or orchestral/choir conducting;

You gain aural skills; verbal and compositional fluency; technical skills in electronics and computing; performance skills; analysis techniques and experience of working in groups and perform with others musicians;

You develop a critical understanding of music's contextual roles and functions in society, as well as a practical understanding of its inner workings – particularly the functions of harmony and musical thinking (modality, tonality, atonality and post-tonality);

You learn confidence in presenting your ideas, both verbally and in writing, and assurance in working alongside others. Music-making is a collaborative process and the social and organisational skills that you develop within a music degree provide invaluable preparation for a wide range of professional activities;

You gain the Bachelor Diploma (Bc.) valid worldwide which authorize you to carry on various jobs: composer, sound designer, composer of electro-acoustic music, sound engineer, musician and performer in different ensembles (classical, historical and jazz music), conductor (choir or orchestral), theorist, musicologist, music redactor, music dramaturge and employer in musical and cultural institutions;

You gain the Supplementary Pedagogical Study Diploma to your Bachelor Diploma, which authorize you to teach at music schools, conservatories and universities at the bachelor degree.

Bachelor Diploma enables you to study at Master (Magister) Study Programmes at all music universities worldwide.

What will I achieve after graduation Mgr.Art. Study Programme?

Graduating the master MPT programme you get the specialization in the field of performing arts music - depending on the selected musical instrument or singing in classical or jazz music, orchestral or choir conducting.

Graduating the master programme MCT you get the specialization in composition, according to the selected type of composition (classical, jazz music, electroacoustic or multimedia music).

At the same time you will get a specialized knowledge from a comprehensive analysis of composition, history of Slovak music styles and directions in music and 20. century art, music aesthetics, and also further information on the scientific methods and applied discipline of musicology .

You will be examined mainly via assessed portfolios, practical presentations (concerts, performances), seminar works and presentations. You will be prepared in master diploma thesis – practical part (public concert in MPT or composition in MCT) and in master diploma thesis – theoretical part (written diploma thesis thematically related to the practical specialisation).

Graduates will also receive verbal ability and creative communication; ability comprehensive analysis and interpretation of a musical work. They will also be able to critical attitude and understanding of the context, the role and function of music in society, as well as practical perception and understanding of musical thinking and logical evolution of music from the past to the present. They develop the capacity of perception of genre and stylistic differences in music and the arts, as well as assessing the quality of a piece of music and performing art.

You gain the Master Diploma (Mgr.Art.) valid worldwide which authorize you to carry on various jobs: composer, sound designer, composer of electro-acoustic music, sound engineer, a freelance composer, sound designer , music and sound director, music editor, musician, soloist and performer in different ensembles (classical, historical and jazz music), conductor (choir or orchestral), theorist, musicologist, music redactor, music dramaturge and employer in musical and cultural institutions with a high degree of independent decision-making and creative thinking, leadership and management functions, etc.

More information:

www.huaja.org

info@huaja.org